

Thank you for your participation in our team's design project. The goal of this usability test is to evaluate the design and interface of our product. This test is not meant to test your skills or anything related with your ability to perform.

Our product is a game application that will run on a tablet device. The purpose of our product is to motivate patients who experience motor impairment in fingers and hands.

The included manual explains the game concept.

Today's testing will be of the computer prototype of our product. Please be aware of that since this is still a design prototype it may lack some features which will be smoothed out by one of the test conductor.

We will ask you to fill out questionnaires before and after the usability testing. Your response is very important for our product design, so it would be deeply appreciated if you can leave us with as many comments as possible. As per stated in the consent form, our testing activity may be recorded on video, stored securely, anonymized and used for solely design improvement purposes and will not be released externally without your permission.

Thank you again for your participation.
